MAT141 - extra credit

Is it possible for a sequence $\{x_k\}_{k=1}^{\infty}$ to be bounded and divergent, and have exactly one accumulation point?

If yes, give an example (or otherwise prove its existence).

If no, give a proof why it is not possible.